Funeral Services Held For Mrs. Grace Ridge

Funeral services were held Tuesday from the parlors of Layng & Tinney for Mrs. Grace Ridge, who passed away Sunday at the home of her son, Walter Ridge on Oak Knoll Drive. The services were conducted by Rev. E. F. Hamby and were followed by interment in the Grand Army plot of Union cemetery, where her husband, Joseph Ridge, was buried several months ago.

Mrs. Ridge was 85 years of age and a native of Nova Scotia. She has for some years been making her home with her son, Walter Ridge of this city. In addition to this son, she leaves two sons Wayne L., and George W. Ridge, of Anoka, Minn., and three daughters, Drs. Eva McKeem of Minneapolis, Mrs. Addie Woods of Boise, Idaho, and Mrs. Ella Ridge.

Hearing Held On Charges Of Murder

Louis Reyes, charged with the murder on September 18 of George Bassett was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Edward I. McAuliffe yesterday. Reyes was a worker on one of the barges of the Raymond Concrete Pile Co., which is constructing the San Mateo-Alameda bridge. Bassett was another laborer on the same bridge and was killed during a quarrel with Reyes.

The first witness called by the prosecution was Dr. Edward B. Tiffany, autopsy surgeon of the county of Alameda. Dr. Tiffany testified to the severity of the injuries which resulted in the death of Bassett.

The chief witness was Arne Astad, another worker of the bridge company. Astad was the only eye witness to the quarrel. He stated that he was standing near Bassett and Reyes when the latter struck the former with a heavy timber, knocking him from the barge into the water. Astad stated that he had seen the men quarreling prior to this but did not hear what was said.

Leroy Loxley, a civil engineer of the bridge company, testified that the affair occured approximately 6000 feet on the San Mateo county side of the line dividing this and Alameda counties.

Reyes was arrested in Alameda and was brought to the jail here this week by Alameda officials He was defended by Attorney C. Terrizini. Assistant District Attorney Edmund Scott conducted the prosecution.

Following the hearing of evidence Terrizini stated that he would not at this time adduce any witnesses to the defence of his client, but asked that the charge be reduced from murder to that of manslaughter. Justice of the Peace McAuliffe, however, ruled that the case would be held to the superior court as charged.

ATHERTON MAYOR IS HOOVER CLUB LEADER

M. A. Harris, the popular mayor of Atherton, is head of the Business Men's Hoover Club of San Francisco and has headquarters at the Palace Hotel. He is working in conjunction with the Republican State Central Committee, and is doing yeoman service for the Hoover cause in this state. He is devoting his entire time, energy and money to the party in the hope that Herbert Hoover is successful in November.

Mr. Harris never does anything by halves but throws his whole soul into his work at hand. In this campaign he is bending every effort to secure a big vote for Hoover in California. Mr. Harris predicts that the state will give him a majority of a half a million votes.

Y. M. C. A. In Drive For Year's Funds

The first "touchdown" was scored at the "kick-off" meeting for the Redwood City's team of Y. M. C. A. finance campaign workers, captained by D. W. Williams when $290 was raised on the goal of $1800.

The team is out for a championship and is planning to cover the "yardage" every "down" that will bring in a tally of eighteen hundred points in dollars in the shortest possible time.

The men are in the "pink" of condition" and are planning on putting the ball over in record time as a challenge to the other peninsula cities.

Captain Williams and Coach Roy A. Hohberger appealed to the citizens of Redwood to show the highest type of Redwood spirit for without this, no matter how fine a team we have, they will not be able to do their best.

Lyman L. Pierce challenged the men with the whortwhileness of their task, of the need for supervised club and leisure time activities of the type that will not only lead boys and young men to the real manhood but will give them a dynamic to develop to their best. He told of the calibre of men who are being attracted to serving the men and boys of the nation and of the world through this organization.

Under the auspices of the Smith Club of this city, Major A. V. Dalrymple of San Francisco will address the citizens of Redwood City next Monday evening at the central school auditorium on Broadway. All are invited to hear this eloquent speaker.

Mr. and Mrs Fred Walker are receiving the congratulations of their friends upon the birth Saturday of a baby girl at the Redwood City hospital. The father is connected with the First National Bank of this city.

High School Band Returns from Trip To Fire Convention

The Sequoia High School band which played at the convention of the Pacific Coast Fire Chiefs' Association at Sacramento on Tuesday, returned on the boat Delta King to San Francisco Wednesday morning. The band was accompanied by Otis M. Carrington, music instructor at the high school who sang several vocal numbers at the convention.

On Monday the band of 35 members with all its equipment, left here for Sacramento by boat. While in the capital city the musicians were entertained as guests of the Elks Club and the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce.

A number of members of the Redwood City Fire Department were on hand Wednesday morning to greet the returning band. Those who went were Al Russell, Larry Dupcan, Emmett Donnelly, Lawrence Wood, Brenton Werder, C. Fowler, Clarence Choate and Leslie Samson.

Mark Ryan, chief of the local department, is presiding at the Sacramento convention which will close on Saturday. This is Ryan's last official act before retiring as president of the Pacific Coast Fire Chiefs' Association. He was accompanied to the convention by Robert Bell of the Redwood City department.

Redwood Building Hits High Mark

The building business in Redwood City is on the up curve according to a report filed Monday by Building Inspector Con Drathman. This report shows that for the first three-quarters of the year permits issued by Drathman totaled $1,739,651, a new high record. The 253 permits issued during the first nine months doubled in value all permits issued during the fiscal year of 1927-28 when $807,957 in permits were issued. Thirty-eight, the highest number for any one month, brought the September total to $229,953.

MEETING PLANNED TO DISCUSS PLAN FOR CHARTER

A meeting has been called by the San Mateo county supervisors for the discussion of a charter form of government for this county. The calling of this meeting by the board was recipitated by the agitation in favor of the consolidation of this county with San Francisco, following a meeting held in San Francisco last week.

The meeting will take place at the court house on October 29 in the morning. The suggestion that such a meeting be called was made by Fred H. Drake, president of the San Mateo Coonty Chamber of Commerce. It was felt by Drake that if some plan could be worked out whereby the county government could be simplified and the duplication of officials reduced that the people of the county would be less apt to consider consolidation with San Francisco.

Pioneer of Pescadero Answers Last Summons

Funeral services were held Saturday in Pescadero for Mrs. Anne Shaw Adair, pioneer resident of Pescadero, and for many years a leader in the social and community life of the coastside section Funeral services were held at the family home and were attended by many sorrowing friends as well as the relatives of the deceased woman. Interment was in the Pescdero cemetery.

Mrs. Adair is survived by her husband, Daniel C. Adair, by two daughters, Mrs. Milton Nevraumont, Mrs. Miriam Eckhart and by a son, Henry Adair. She was the sister of Mrs. B. J. Blairsdale and of Grace, Edgar, John, James, and Charles Shaw.

Middlefield Road To Be Improved

Supervisor J. W. Poole was authorized by the supervisors on Monday to have the county engineers prepare plans and specifications for placing three feet of a shoulder on both sides of the Middlefield road in his jurisdiction from Redwood City to Atherton, and from Atherton to the San Francisquito creek. The whole surface of the thoroughfare will be paved and rolled and oiled. It is understood that the city trustee of Atherton are working in harmony with Mr. Poole and will make similar improvement on that portion of the road over which the trustees have jurisdiction. The heavy travel over the thoroughfare since the opening of the Dumbarton bridge necessitates the improvement. Bids will be asked for next week and the work is to be completed before the rainy season sets in.

Mrs. M. H. Shields Honored on Retirement

Mrs. Mary Hull Shields of San Carlos, and a sister of Asa Hull of this city, has after 36 years and a half of service as chief clerk of the tax department of the Southern Pacific Company, retired on a pension. Mrs. Shields' retirement took place on September 1. She received the first certificate of retirement ever issued by the company signed personally by President Sproul.

Mrs. Shields, prior to making her connection with the railroad company, was employed in the tax collector's office of this county. She was the first woman ever to be employed at the courthouse here, being engaged by the late George Lovey.

Mrs. Shields entered the service of the Southern Pacific Company on February 8, 1892, under the late E. Black Ryan, then head of the tax department, and has been continuously with that department as chief clerk. During her long and faithful service she has made many friends, who regret that eye trouble has caused her to request retirement and who hope that rest and relaxation will prove beneficial and that she may have many years in which to enjoy her well-earned leisure.

The Law and Tax Department and several old-time friends and fellow employes joined in presenting her with an exquisite sterling silver centerpiece and candle stick as a token of their esteem.

Her retirement was the occasion of a dinner given in her honor at the Western Women's Club by a number of women employes of the Company who had long been close friends and associates. A souvenir of the occasion, a handsome pen and pencil finished in jade was given to her. After the dinner, a pleasant hour was enjoyed in the lounge of the club.

Mrs. Shields is now visiting friends in the east.

Menlo Women Make Strong Hoover Drive

Mindful of Herbert Hoover's request that his campaign be supported by small sums from many, rather than by the method that has hitherto prevailed of large sums from a few, the Hoover admirers from Menlo Park have come forth with enthusiastic responses. Mrs. J. J. Garland chairman of the Menlo Park Hoover committee, has appointed her vice-chairmen for the various precincts who in turn are being assisted by others. These women are visiting the homes of Republican women, signing up the Hoover voters and asking for sums from 25 cents to $5.00. Hoover, it is felt, will be most gratified when he learns of the confidence the mothers of Menlo Park have in him as the protector of the youth of this country and as a true patriot, who wishes to make his country better. They know their children will be safe with a man great enough to win the highest esteem of the whole world.

Among those enrolling Hoover women and collecting funds are Mrs. Roger M. Roberts, Mrs. R. E. Hammond, Mrs. Ella M. Clancy, Miss Meta Kugeler, Mrs. Margaret Dewey, Mrs. W. K. Martin, Mrs. Paul Boyer, Mrs. Mildred McCacery, Mrs. J. T. Cooper, Mrs. Olga Jacobson, Mrs. E. Gardner, Mrs. Dora Davidson, Mrs. Bertha Buckout, Mrs. Irvin Holmes, Mrs Victor Lightbody, Mrs. A. D Mann, Mrs. Fred Worrell, Mrs Wells, Mrs. Mary W. Rourke, Mrs A Seiler.

There will be an executive board meeting Friday morning at 10:30 when the precinca vice-chairmen will meet with Mrs. Garland at Hoover headquarters in Ward Monroe's office.

H. H. Smith, the popular mayor of Daly City, was in Redwood City yesterday looking after the interests of Herbert Hoover in this section. Mr. Smith is a member of the state central committee from this county. He says that the north ern portion of the county will give a big vote to Hoover.

The Congregational church resumed this week its weekly church dinners on Wednesday evenings The dinners were discontinued during the summer.

George Hopkins, city superintendent of parks, has returned after a two weeks' vacation in the southern part of the state and on a visit to the Grand Canyon While in the south he visited his step-daughter, Mrs. Robert Geatry and family.

J. Romero Held To Answer Here

After a preliminary hearing which was continued twice and was concluded yesterday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Percy C. Jackson, Jose Romero was held to trial before the superior court of this county for the murder of Frank C. Loper.

The chief witness on the stand yesterday was Mrs. Loper, widow of the murdered man. Mrs. Loper testified that she was in bed at the time that the shot was fired, but she put on a dress and ran into the room where she found her husband shot and found Romero with a gun.

Judge Jackson considered that sufficient testimony had been adduced to warrant the case being heard before a jury. The prosecution was conducted by Assistant District Attorney Ermund Scott. Attorney James Davis represented the defendant.

Big Mill Tract Sold This Week

The Virginia Mill property, consisting of 2500 acres of land near King's Mountain was sold this week to A. Wehe, who many years ago placed Redwood Highland property on the market, then owned by W. Dingee. The original redwood timber was cut 20 years ago by Frank Grey and associates. There is a second growth of trees that add to the beauty and value of the tract. It is believed the holding will be subdivided into ten-acre tracts to be sold to San Francisco week-end visitors. The sum of $100,000 was paid for the property.

REDWOOD CITY WOMEN WORKING FOR HOOVER

The Republican women of Redwood City, under the leadership of Mrs. C. D. Jessup are doing excellent work for Herbert Hoover in this section. The headquarters at 702 State Highway, is a busy place. An army of progressive and energtic women are working like beavers sending out literature The home of every republican woman is being invaded by these workers carrying the gospel of republicanism to the housewife. These women are hopeful that Redwood City will roll up a big majority for the Republican candidate on November 6.

No Agreement Reached In Manslaughter Case

A jury which heard the evidence against John Pacheco, charged with manslaughter, in the court of Judge Geo. H. Buck in this city Tuesday failed to reach an agreement and was discharged. Pacheco was tried in connection with the death of William F. Beall of San Francisco on May 29. Beall was run over while changin a tire near Menlo Park on May 12 and died in the Palo Alto hospital.

The jury deliberated for more than two hours. When it was evident that no agreement was possible, Judge Buck ordered a new trial and set the date as November 5th.

High School Athletics

Playing Santa Clara prep in the last practice game of the year, the Sequoian football men will be out Friday after school with the firm determination to win.

The Santa Clarans held the Burlingame panthers to a six tie in a previous game of this season, and the results of the Sequoia game will give a fair idea of the type of football being played by the Cherokees. The game is scheduled for 3:30 Friday.

The evening following the game, the tens and twenties play their first league game in basketball with San Mateo. This game is scheduled for 7:45, and it promises to be a fast and exciting game, as the San Mateoans are the old-time enemies of the Purple and White. In the game of last week, the football men defeated the Salinas cowboys by an 18-0 score and in the basketball games, the tens defeated the Galileo teamsters, while the twenties lost to a close score.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lodi have returned from a vacation spent at Byron Hot Springs.

Rev: and Mrs. R. J. Currie moved this week into the D. G. Graham house on Hopkins street. The Currie home was recently destroyed by fire.

Chief of Police Collins and Mrs. C. L. Collins have returned from a two week's vacation spent in the Sierras.

New Directors Elected Redwood Kiwanis Club

A new board of directors was elected Wednesday by the Redwood City Kiwanis club at its regular weekly meeting at the Episcopal parish house. The club is following a new system of election adopted a short time ago by the club. By the new plan the directors are elected by the club, and they in turn elect from their number the president, vice-president and other officers of the club.

The new directors elected Wednesday were John Gill, Edward T. Harrison, James Hedge, Elmore B. Hinman, Charles G. Lambert, Carl Stoner, Roscoe Stevens, Carl Wagner, Henry Wittee, Sam Winklebleck. The president and district trustee to be elected by these directors, and the retiring district trustee, Roscoe Stevens, will act as delegates to the state convention to be held in Sacramento on the 8th, 9th and 10th of November.

The next meeting of the Kiwanis club will observe the birthday of James Whitcomb Riley with a Riley program under the direction of Clarence M. Doxsee.

On October 16, the club will act as host to the San Mateo-Burlingame and the Palo Alto Kiwanis clubs at a meeting to be held at the Menlo Country Club. Arrangements for this occasion are being taken care of by Roscoe Stevens.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB PLANS JAZZ DANCE

On Saturday evening, October 20th, the Greater Redwood City Improvement Association will hold an Old Clothes dance in the club room at Roosevelt and Romona avenues.

There will be prizes for the most original costumes, also a door prize

The admission will 25c each. Everbody is welcome to come and dance to good jazz music.

Viola M. Maysenholder is chairman of the committee which has the affair in charge.

Man To Be Tried For Death of Boy

A charge of manslaughter will be placed against Henry E. Smith of San Francisco as a result of the death near Baden crossing in the northern part of the county of Herbert M. Downs. An inquest over the body of Downs, a San Mateo boy, killed in an automobile crash in which Smith's car was involved, failed to fix the responsibility for the accident. District Attorney Swart, however, stated that he would call for a preliminary hearing in the court of Justice of the Peace Edward McAuliffe on a charge of manslaughter. The charge was sworn to by A. J. Ford, official of the state motor vehicle department, who investigated the crash. The accident occured on September 23.

Democrats to Hold Meeting on Monday

On Monday evening at the Central school on Broadway, the local Smith-Robinson club will hold a meeting. Those who have the affair in charge have made arrangements to have a speaker from San Francisco. Mrs. Cecelia Casserly, democratic candidate for congress, will also give a talk at this time.

High School Will Present Comedy

Making their first bid as a class for dramatic honors, the Juniors in Sequoia Union High School will present "One of the Family," Saturday, October 27, in the Sequoia auditorium.

Mrs. Bess Balcomb, who coached many successful plays last year, is in charge of this one. She is assisted by Miss Georgia Clark, class adviser.

The cast is running through the rehearsals two or three times a week. These practices last from 3:45 to 5:45. Miss Clark has complimented them on their enthusiasm.

"One of the Family" is a gay comedy of what happens when a newly married man's family feels that he cannot start a household of his own without its presence and help. It has proved a huge success in New York, with both critic and public.

The entire cast and understudies are:

Eudele Murphy and Kathleen Juday, Penelope; Norma Campbell, Lucy; Charlotte Rider, Auntie; Helen Maninat and Mary Barretto, Irene; Enid Mays and Violet Schaller, Joyce; Fred Kalenborn and Rodger Komsthoett, George; Jim Esnault, Frank; Starleigh Thomas and Fred Musso, Henry; Walter Vander Kamp and George Holmes, Burke; Martha Cummings and Rosalie Carrington, Maggie.

Y. M. C. A. MAN TALKS TO REDWOOD CITY EXCHANGE

Members of the Redwood City Exchange club were given a treat at their meeting Tuesday evening in the form of a talk by Lloyd E. Wilson, San Francisco Y. M. C. A. executive. Wilson gave an impersonation of a negro soldier in France during the war which was greatly enjoyed. The chairman of the meeting was Emil Hendrickson, manager of the Sudden Lumber Company.

Two vocal numbers were given by Roy Hohberger, local representative of the Y. M. C. A.

Promotion Club Holds Meeting

The Redwood City Promotion Association held their regular weekly meeting Tuesday night in the grammar school on Broadway with a very large attendance. Many important problems were discussed, the most important one being the consolidation of San Francisco with San Mateo county. More discussion on this subject is to take place at the next regular meeting.

The social committee reported many tickets being sold for the dance which is to be held in the Parish House on Saturday evening October 13th. Many good prizes are promised.

At the close of the business meeting all enjoyed a game of whist, high score being made by William Hogan. Whist parties at the close of the regular weekly meetings will be a feature of this association during the winter months. All are invited.

Different Tale From Wisconsin

WISCONSIN'S football team was able to defeat only one Big Ten opponent last fall, but it will be an entirely different tale this season. The Cardinals have an abundance of experienced material, and wise ones around the conference predict a big year for Wisconsin.

Rube E. Wagner, of St. Paul, whom Glen Thistlethwaite regards as the best tackle prospect in the Western conference, will captain the Wisconsin team. He is a senior this year.

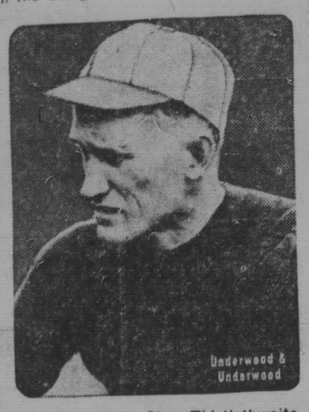
Wagner has been one of the outstanding football and track stars at the Badger school for the last two years, despite the fact that he has worked his way through college since the day he enrolled. He intends to coach after graduation, and for that reason has confined his activities to athletics.

Glen Thistlethwaite will coach the Badgers. It will be his second season in charge there, and he thinks it will be a far more successful one than last season.

Thistlethwaite graduated as an honor student from Earlham college in 1908. After coaching at Illinois college for two years and for four years at Earlham college, he went to Oak Park high school in Chicago, where the teams under his tutelage established such a remarkable record that Northwestern university hired him as head coach.

While at Northwestern, his teams made the best showing of any eleven in the country against the powerful Notre Dame teams of that period, losing three games, it is true, but by very close scores.

He is regarded one of the successful younger Big Ten coaches.



Here We Have Glen Thistlethwaite.

Resumption of Football Relations This Fall

Resumption of football relations between Chicago and Minnesota this year has Gopher fans excited even at this early time. From advance requests for tickets for the game it is expected that the Minnesota stadium will be filled to its 55,000 capacity for the contest. An additional urge for Gopher grads is that the game will be the homecoming affair on the Minnesota schedule.

Minnesota and Chicago have not played since 1916 when the Gophers won, 49 to 0, with the famous forward passing combination, Wyman to Baston, one of the first really great passing pairs in the history of conference football and still rated with the Friedman to Oosterbaan duo which performed at Michigan for three years.

Five thousand tickets for the game have been allotted to Chicago.

Grid Captaincy Means Great Deal to Player

We understand that to a football player the captaincy means a great, great deal. But we know that to the public it means nothing. Not 1 per cent of the people who attend football games knows nor cares who captains the football team.

The captain of a football team is supposed to be in command but it is the coach who looks after things, writes H. G. Salsinger, in the Detroit News. The coach selects the lineup, makes the substitutions and directs the plan of play. The coach tells the captain and the captain tells the boys who did not happen to hear the coach tell the captain. Then, when there is anything to say to the officials, the captain says that. He generally does it with the assistance of the players.

Reds' New Player Gives Coaches Much Credit

Joe Stripp, the hard-hitting young third baseman Cincinnati grabbed from Columbus not long ago, gives credit to Johnny Rawlings and Nemo Liebold for much of his success.

He says Rawlings gave him many valuable pointers about fielding, spotting his weaknesses and telling him how to correct them, but it is to Liebold he gives credit for helping him in his hitting.

He says he thinks he had some natural ability as a hitter, but he also had many faults. Liebold watched him carefully and coached him, and his improvement was noticeable. Stripp say if he makes good as a major leaguer, he will owe much to Rawlings and Liebold.

New Job for Rockne

Knute Rockne, University of Notre Dame coach, has been named as general supervisor of football at St. Thomas college by Very Rev. Matthew Schumacher, C. S. C., new president of the institution. Under the plan outlined Rockne would have general supervision over the football activities at the college with Father Joseph Gibbs as athletic director. This work would necessitate frequent visits by Coach Rockne to the midway institution.

GRIDIRON SPORT VERY EXPENSIVE

Missouri Tigers' Equipment to Cost $100 a Man.

It cost the University of Missouri athletic department $100 per man to fully equip the members of the Tiger varsity for competition this fall, it was disclosed, following a final check of all new equipment received for the coming football campaign. The cost of the complete outfits, much higher than in any previous year, is based upon the various equipment necessary, including wet and dry weather outfits.

Gwinn Henry's desire to lighten the burden which his Tigers must carry has resulted in Missouri's discarding the traditional old gold and black sweater for a lighter garment of airplane cloth, which is several pounds lighter than any previous Missouri team has ever worn. The new sweaters are of solid old gold. Should the Tigers encounter snow and cold weather in any of their late November games this fall, they will find among their equipment a heavy sweater, much the same style that they have been compelled to wear from the opening of practice in September until Thanksgiving.

The Tigers are also wearing a new type of shoe. The cleats are much the same as those on other shoes, but the construction and material used is much lighter, yet it gives the proper protection to the feet of the wearer. Complete new outfits of hip and shoulder pads, both lighter in weight than the old ones, are also in use for the first time.

Here is an estimate of what the varsity Tiger candidate drew from the Missouri storeroom:

Shoulder pads	$12.00
Coat	9.00
Hooded jacket	4.00
Belt	.50
Head guard	12.00
Hip pads	12.00
Pants	5.85
Cloth shirt	9.00
Heavy jersey	6.00
Medium jersey	4.85
Knee pads	3.00
Shoes	15.00
Stockings	3.00
Socks	.50

Doc Gautreau Anxious to Assist Any Rookie

Doc Gautreau, the tiny infielder, formerly with the Boston Braves, but who is now playing in the Eastern league, was a helpful sort of a fellow to rookies breaking into the big leagues. The story is told of the repartee he had with one young man whose hair was not without its hayseed, but whom Gautreau wanted to see get an even break.

Chumming up to the kid in the hotel lobby one night, Doc broke the ice. "Have you decided what you'd like to do tonight?" he asked the innocent one.

"Well, let's think hard," replied the rookie.

"No, no!" snapped the little Gautreau. "Let's do something that you can do, too." But it was wasted on the subject at hand.

Harvard-Yale First to Use the Forward Pass

The forward pass first came into being in the year 1906. It was not until the Harvard-Yale game of the season of 1906 that a great forward pass play appeared. In this struggle P. L. Veeder of Yale late in the first half flung a long forward pass 30 yards down the field to R. W. Forbes, end, who caught the ball and was downed on Harvard's three-yard line. From this point, in a single plunge, the ball was carried across the line for a touchdown, the sole and winning touchdown of the day. This spectacular victory intensely popularized the forward pass during the following winter and raised great expectations for its use in 1907.

To Play Navy-California Game at Yankee Stadium

The Yankee stadium, never greatly favored by the larger college elevens as a site for football games, has just landed one of the greatest plums of the season. Army athletic officers announce that the Stanford-Army game, scheduled for New York on December 1 would be played at the home of the Yankees, where a seating capacity of almost 100,000 is in prospect.

The Army, particularly, always has contended that seats at the Yankee stadium were unsuited for a football game, although the cadets played Notre Dame there in 1925, 1926 and 1927.

Baseball Has Changed

Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn National league team has spent fifty of his sixty-five years in baseball. Robbie was one of the greatest catchers of all time. Discussing the sport in the early days of the game, as a member of the famous Baltimore Orioles, Robbie says: "Baseball was different in those days. During the season the players lived the game. They talked about baseball ten times more than players of today and were sincere in their chatter."

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Old and Young

Dr. William Jay Schefflein, chairman of the American Laboratory theater of New York, was condemning a play that portrayed a corrupt set of young people.

"The young are more innocent than the old," he said, "and that play is false.

"An elderly man and an elderly woman were watching the dancers in the ballroom of an ocean liner.

"'How beautiful youth is!' the woman said with a sigh.

"'Yes,' the man agreed, 'youth is very, very beautiful.' And then he added, 'A pity it has been left in the hands of children.'"

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD"

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak. My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she induced me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicines that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. I think I have given them a fair trial and I expect to take two more bottles of the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Charles Morgan, R. F. D. 1, Tully, N. Y.

Rapid Pedestrianism

Ordinary walking speeds are accelerated several times, it is claimed, with a pair of spring cog-wheel shoes which were exhibited at a recent show in London, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. They are somewhat like roller skates with a special driving mechanism, which is said to be easy for the wearer and makes it possible to attain a rate as high as 30 miles an hour.

WELCOME FALL

A TINGE of cold in the air, overcast skies, falling leaves, top coats and felt hats announce that Fall is here. Vacations are over, the fishing rod has been carefully put away, and one attacks with renewed zest the accumulated work.

The season also offers many sports for those who have the time to participate in them. Football fans may again lead with hoarse shouts for their team to "Hold 'em!" "Hold 'em!" as the pigskin is carried to their three yard line. Huntsmen take an added interest in their dogs and clean up the old gun in expectation of the time when they can tramp the fields and hills in quest of quail, wait patiently in blinds for the whir of ducks' wings, or listen to the baying of the hounds and silently pray that fortune will bring the deer in range.

Thus man lives on, eating sleeping, working, playing, and hardly pausing for thought or thanks to the Great Architect of the Universe who has so arranged the seasons that each differs in practically every respect. The scheme provides a variety of temperatures, numerous and different activities, all of which add to the interest of life and break the monotony of time.

Then welcome, Fall, for you are the announcer of Winter, which is the forerunner of Spring, the predecessor of Summer.—Scottish Rite News.

Our purpose is to build in this nation a human society, not an economic system. We wish to increase the efficiency and productivity of our country, but its final purpose is happier homes—Herbert Hoover.

Hoover Campaign Constructive

A good many Democratic leaders seem to have difficulty in grasping the significance of Herbert Hoover's recent statement to chairmen of the Republican Service Clubs of Maryland that this "is not a campaign of opposition, but a campaign in favor of the issues and candidates in the Republican party."

That declaration, according to those associated with Mr. Hoover in planning the balance of the presidential campaign, should answer every question about the intentions of the Republican nominee. Although Governor Smith has devoted considerable part of his western trip to a sniping campaign against his opponent. Mr. Hoover has no thought of retaliating. Consequently he is not inclined to add to the number of speeches he has already scheduled, as those still to be delivered, in addition to one or more which may be scheduled on his way to California, afford ample opportunity for a complete discussion of the issues upon which the Republican party is standing in this campaign.

Our party platform deals mainly with ecnomic problems, but our nation is not an agglomeration of railroads, of ships, of factories, of dynamos, or statistics. It is a nation of homes, a nation of men, of women, of children.—Herbert Hoover.

THE TARIFF AN ISSUE

THE G. O. P. speakers who predcted early in the campaign that the tariff would be no less an issue than it has been for years have not been disappointed. With the publication of the Democratic campaign textbook, asserting that rates of duty must be limited to the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, farmers and workers have begun to realize that this means an application of the "competitive tariff."

That embodies low wage, foreign competition with high wage, American farm and factory products. The unfavorable reaction among workers and farmers to the Democratic tariff stand has been responsible for the attempts of Gov. Smith and the Democratic chairman to show that Gov. Smith did not endorse the Underwood Act. What he did say was that he approved the principles of the law, and those principles are what Chairman Work says coused a $100,000,000 cut in the American payroll twice within the lifetime of the act, not to mention the damage it did to the farmer by opening the domestic market to foreign competition.

The Republican party learned 20 years ago that the theory of using the difference between production costs here and in other countries as a factor in tariff duties is utterly impossible ofapplicaton. The same conclusion has been reached more recently by the federal tariff commission, which now admits that only in a few instances has it been able to obtain accurate figures on foreign costs of manufacture or production for any industrial or agrcultural commodities.

I especially rejoice in the effect of our increased national efficiency upon the improvement of the American home. That is the sanctuary of our loftiest ideals, the source of the spiritual energy of our people.—Herbert Hoover.

To Talk Into Millions of Homes

THE voice of Herbert Hoover will be heard in millions of homes when the Republican presidential candidate desires to lay important issues of campaign before the voters of the country. As Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Hoover has made a number of radio addresses. Plain, important facts constitute his most eloquent utterances and his voice is dispassionate but convincing.

ANIMAL RABIES SHOWN TO BE ON INCREASE HERE

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 4 (CNB)—Animal rabies, terror of the stockman in 1923 when 1092 casers were reported in the state, threatens to make another "black year" in any localities, according to Dr. Walter M. Dickie, state director of health.

Nearly 500 cases of the disease have been reported in California during the first eight months of this year, according to the health mentor, who today called for drastic action to curb the spread of the disease, chiefly through disposal of stray animals.

More prevalent during the winter months than, as popularly is supposed, during the "dog days," rabies has been reported as affecting more than 3000 animals in Northern California since 1920. This year, however, the disease is more largely confined to Los Angeles county, although cases have been reported in the north coast counties, the upper San Joaquin Valley and the Sacramento Valley.

Calling on Redwood City and every other city of the state to take immediate action to control stray dags and other animals, Dr. Dickie cited that the disease cost California $150,000 in 1915, and that this year's loss threatens to run into any thousands of dollars. While the Pasteur treatment will, in most cases, save lives of persons bitten by rabid animals, cost and inconveniece is considerable and is attended by great danger, he declared.

Since 1922, dogs have been rabid in 3017 cases, while the disease has affected 36 cows, 71 cats, 18 coyotes, 12 horses, 11 goats six mules four sheep two hogs two foxes and one skunk in known instances.

LOCAL FOX FARM IS UNIQUE INDUSTRY

On a little farm near the end of Roosevelt avenue in this city is perhaps the most extraordinary collection of livestock ever assembled in this county. Here in big wire cages sleek sliver foxes slink about with a furtive air born of generations of watching in the wild; gay plumaged pheasants strut and shake their gorgeous heads; parrakeets hop into and out of odd little cocoanut shell houses; and big fat mallard ducks bob contentedly on little ponds of water or flap their wings and give the call which acts as a magic lure to the wild ducks of the swamps.

W. J. Miller and E. A. Miller are proprietors and custodians of this strange assembly of living creatures. Here on his little seven-acre farm, W. J. Miller rears his varied brood; here he has pens of dappled valley quail with plumed heads, plump bobwhites, crested doves from Australia, sweet-noted ring doves, and crimson breasted bleeding heart doves. Here also are a pair of cardinal birds, a Japanese robin, and a variety of pheasants.

Miller is an ardent fancier of bantum chickens and many batum buff coachens with feathery legs and feet, and also Japanese silky bantums from Japan. The little bantum hens he uses to hatch quail eggs.

But Miller's chief pride is in his foxes, and in raising these sleek little fellows he is a pioneer in this section. There is a science in rearing foxes, and in this line Miller is a scientist. Each fox is fed a measured amount of prepared food once a day, the pens are kept scrupulously clean, and each fox is tended with the greatest care.

There are thirteen foxes on the farm now, and these little animals represent a lot of money. For one of his male foxes Miller refused an offer of $1,000; not one pelt is valued at less than $100. The foxes are raised for their fur, one of the most highly valued furs on the market, coal black with a generous sprinkling of silver gray hairs which gives it a frosted appearance.

The raising of foxes requires much work and great care, but to these Miller adds an understanding of the fox which has made him so successful in his work. The animals are so tame that he can call them to him and feed them dog biscuits from his hands. Each of the older foxes has its name and answers to that name when called. The raising of foxes is a comparatively recent innovation, and for this work Miller states that the climate here is ideally adapted. On his ranch plentious shade is provided by big trees around his fox pens, so that the little beasts are protected against the heat of summer, and the winter, he states is cold enough to put their fur in fine condition. The plant is being enlarged in contemplation of an increased number of animals next year, and soon the Miller farm bids fair to be one of the leading fox farms of the country, as the strain of the foxes raised there is the famous Roosevelt strain and is declared to be a very superior type and of a class that finds a ready market.

STROPPING IS ESSENTIAL TO THE PERFECT SHAVE

a Million barbers can't be WRONG!

Stropping a razor blade can't be foolish—surely a super-keen blade must be preferable

YOU must know that after the first shave the cutting edge of the finest blade that can be made is a row of tiny jagged hooks—until it is stropped. Stropping smooths out and re-aligns these minute points. That's why barbers everywhere always strop before each shave. They've done it for 2,000 years.

And that's why shavers everywhere are eagerly adopting the famous new Valet AutoStrop Razor. Its automatic self-stropping device guarantees a perfect blade for each morning's shave. No trouble. A flip of the thumb—a few swift strokes—and the edge is as keen as can be. No need to remove blade to strop or clean it.

What's more, 21 years of research and the expenditure of a million dollars have made this famous razor the most perfect shaving device ever offered.

Recently introduced, the Million Dollar Valet AutoStrop Razor is already a nation-wide sensation. Even if you thought that the original Valet AutoStrop Razor could not be improved, get one of the new Million Dollar models today. Try it with the new Valetite-processed blades. Judge its betterments for yourself.

You'll say this Million Dollar Razor is worth all it cost to make—yet it costs you so little that you can't afford to be without it.

Interest Shown in Plan For County Consolidation

Considerable interest has been expressed in this county as well as in San Francisco on the proposal of consolidation of the two counties made at a meeting held in San Francisco last Friday by the bureau of governmental research of San Francisco. The meeting was held in the Palace Hotel and was attended by representatives and businessmen of both counties.

The bureau of governmental research, under the direction of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce , has for some time past been making a study of conditions of the two counties. Its report bound in pamphlet form was presented to each person present at the meeting. The report is very full and consideration is given to every angle of the question. It recommends:

"That the two areas cooperate in a plan of consolidation as a city-county with adequate provisions for local representation on a central legislative body, a centralized administration of common governmental functions, in the retention of local powers and control of local functions by local units, or burroughs.

"That the state constitution be amended to permit the consolidation of the two counties upon a majority favorable vote in each county separately.

"That in event of such favorable vote, the entire area be governed by a city-county unit, with burroughs for local control of taxation and local affairs.

"That should any incorporated city of San Mateo county return an adverse vote on consolidation, while the vote of the entire county was favorable, then each incorporated city voting against consolidation should retain it's identity and powers as a city, and county functions and other centralized functions as may be delegated, would be performed by the city-county and taxed therefor.

"That no incorporated city could be consolidated without the consent of a majority of voters.

"That the state legislature, as authorized by the constitution should provide for the election of freeholders to draft a charter for the proposed consolidation government.

A plan proposed some time ago by certain residents of the northern part of the county that only that portion of the county north of Belmont be included in the plan was not considered practicable by the committee. This plan the committee considered would result in a hardship upon the remaining portion of the county.

The question of consolidation is being seriously considered by a number of civic organizations. A meeting to discuss this problem was held by the Halfmoon Bay Chamber of Commerce Tuesday and another is scheduled for October 30, at which time a speaker from San Francisco will present views on the subject. The matter of consolidation also formed the chief topic of discussion at the Redwood City Promotion Association this week.

LOCAL STORE ENTERED BY NIGHT PROWLERS

Sometime during Tuesday night persons, believed to be boys, entered the new store of Stafford and Long on Broadway. The culprits entered through an upper rear window which had been left open for ventilation. A check-up of the stock disclosed that the only articles disturbed were cigarettes and candy. A report was made on Wednesday to the Redwood City police.

DRASTIC ACTION NEEDED IN STATE TO REDUCE DEATHS

Fatal Wrecks Here Too Frequent Is Belief Of Supervisor

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 4 (CNB)—Automobiles proved to be man's most dangerous weapon in California for the first eight months of 1928, dealing death to 1247 persons, according to figues compiled today by Frank G. Snook, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles.

In San Mateo County alone the victims of fatal auto accidents, toaled up to September first, 45, the Snook report shows.

Deaths reached a high red mark in August with 218 casualties in California, while for the first six months 879 motor deaths were recorded by state traffic officers.

Los Angeles led the fatal automobile procession with 103 deaths for two-thirds of 1928; while San Francisco was second with 77 dead from traffic accidents and Oakland third with 30 fatalities.

Unless halted by a vigorous safety campaign, Snook predicts that California's dead due to automobile accidents will total 1800 for the present year, exceeding the 1927 record of 1651, which in turn was greater than the 1926 casualty list of 1623.

The matter has been the cause of considerable discussion officially and otherwise in this county. At the meeting of the Redwood City Kiwanis club last week, District Attorney Swart, the chief speaker on that day, presented facts relative to the number of fatal accidents in this county and in Santa Barbara, where a traffic squad of the same number of men is maintained. From these figures and from the statistics presented by Swart relative to the number of arrests made it appeared that this county was many times ahead of Santa Barbara in the number of accidents which had occured during the year, yet far behind in the number of arrests made.

The subject was discussed at the meeting of the board of supervisors Monday, at which time the question of employing additional traffic officers was discussed. The officers are needed to properly police the highways of the county, according to Supervisor Poole, chairman of the board.

Supervisor Hickey also spoke on the matter of the policing the highway. The double traffic lanes employed in some sections of the highway for segregating the fast and slow traffic, Hickey declared, have proved useless in reducing the number of traffic accidents. The real menace, however, according to the supervisor is the joy rider.

The joy rider, Hickey stated, who parades up and down the highway at night is a menace to everyone who uses the highway. He also emphasized the fact that in addition to the highway, which because of the geographical location of the county has an unusually week-end traffic, other sections of the county are in need of traffic regulation. The employment of five additional men would, it was felt, take care of these conditions.

Following this discussion of the traffic question on the highway a letter was received by the board from S. M. St. John of Belmont in which the particular problem was referred to. St. John called the attention of the board to the fact that at this busy corner no regulation is attempted. He stated that the school bus which must make this crossing several times a day is in peril ever time it crosses the highway at this point and that no protection is granted to the school children who must cross here on foot.

The matter of the regulation of traffic at this point was referred to District Attorney Swart as the status of Belmont is now in question since the disincorporation proceedings of that town are still in court on appeal.

High School NOTES

Sequoia's debating society will send its negative team to the Girls' high school, October 29, and the latter will send their affirmative team here to debate the question; "Resolved, that commercialized boxing in the state of California should be abolished." Mrs. Bess Balcomb is the coach of the three Sequoian teams.

A three-act play, written by Kenneth Webb, entitled, "One of the Family," is to be presented by the junior class, October 27. It is being coached by Mrs. Bess Balcomb, dramatic coach, assisted by Miss Helen Clark, junior class adviser. Enid Mays and Starleigh Thomas are to play the leads with a large cast.

Difficulties have again arisen in the plans for the Sequoia Union High School. On September 17, at a meeting held for the consideration of the bids on the project, the one on general contracting was rejected, and the ones for heating, painting, plumbing and plastering were held over for further consideration. The new bids for the general contracting will be opened October 5. The committee hopes that $5000 or $6000 will be cut from the bids. Preparatory work begun, and A. C. Argo, principal of work on the project has already the high school, stated that if the new bids are satisfactory, construction will follow immediately after they are received.

Street Widening Asked At City Board Meeting

Petitions from property owners on Broadway from Washington street to Main street and on Main street from Broadway to Webster street were received by the city council at its meeting Monday evening. The petitions asked that these two streets be widened by the removal of three feet from the sidewalks on each side, that new curbs and gutters be installed, that a new surface be laid on the streets and that new and larger electroliers be installed.

The requests of the petitions were referred to Charles Dimmitt, city superintendent of streets. A. J. Jenson, a property owner of Main street, below Broadway, was present and requested that the lower end of Main street be included in this improvement.

The board informed Jenson that it could not include this portion of the street unless a majority of the property owners requested it. Jenson stated that he would have a petition signed by pracically all of the property owners of this section to present to the board at its next meeting, and was assured by Mayor Beeger that his reqest would be given the same attention as that of the other property owners who asked to have their property improved.

San Mateo Legion To Hold Dance

San Mateo Post American Legion will hold its annual dance on Saturday night at Pacific City. The dance is being held for the purpose of raising money to refurnish the club house of the post, which has just been finished inside and out.

The Legionnaires are sponsoring a troop of Boy Scouts, and it is planned to have the club house fitted out for the bos as well as for the members of the Legion.

Music for the dance will be supplied by Fred Lambs 10-piece orchestra. Tickets are $1.00 for gentlemen and ladies are free. An invitation has been issued to members of the local Legion post and their friends to be present.

Council in Session

The city council met in regular session Tuesday evening, all msmbers being present. Blake read the report of the chief of police for the period ending, September 30.

The report showed that the chief had collected during the past month the sum of $893.35 from the following sources: dog licenses and licenses from the business man, $185.70; fines from motor vehicle violations, $147.50; other violations, $560.

The city attorney brought up the matter of the bail money held by the chief of police, saying that it should be reported by him to the council. The chief said the money on hand for bail amounted to $2500, the greater portion of which was deposited with the sheriff, while about $400 was deposited in the local bank in his name. He wanted the funds in such a position that they could be used at any time in urgent cases where the bail bond could be returned to the violator in case the bail was exonerated. After considerable discussion, the matter was deferred until the next meeting.

On motion of Walker, the sum of $200 was appropriated to patch up the streets of the city. Mayor Weeden held that the procedure was not regular in that the property owners should initiate the work in the proper way by petition of the property owners. Blake spoke for the contemplated improvement while Dale declared that the streets of the city should be accepted before any work was done. Walker said that he and other councilmen had been shown the streets of other cities by George Kneese and after the investigation thought that the engineer should go over the local streets and begin a plan of improvement, the work to start next spring.

Fred Metcalf presented the report of the planning commission and maps of the city showing the divisions in which the territory was zoned by the commission. Action on the report was deferred for a week to give the members of the council time to read it. After the acceptance of the report the council will hold a public meeting to hear all those interested.

Engineer Armstrong was allowed expenses to the amount of $35 incurred in the hearing of the Bear Gulch water rate held here last week and again will be taken up on October 15th. Mr. Armstrong represents the city council together with the city attorney.

F. W. Johnson appeared before the council in regard to the macadamizing of Cambridge street to Cale. He announced that he had signed up 28 of the 47 property owners on the street, and was certain he would secure the signatures of nearly all the owners. The entire cost of the contemplated improvement would be in the neighborhood of $1600. The council at a previous meeting had instructed Johnson to secure the data that he might have the work done, but at this meeting recanted, declaring the whole matter was irregular. After considerable wrangling the council decided to continue the question until the next meeting in order to communicate with the city engineer.

Ordinance No. 35, relating to the regulating the putting up of signs and advertising matter on the streets of the city, was up for the first reading and will be adopted at the next meeting.

Acting City Attorney Sherman reported that according to the zoning laws, a class C building should be erected on the school property, for which a permit is being sought.

The dog license was ordered amended to the effect that the poun master not enter private property to seaure a canine. The pound master must not enter private property to secure a dog. The star. The resignation of the efficient official was accepted.

Ordinance No. 36, regulating the sale and inspection of milk was up for the first reading and will be adopted at the next meeting of the council.

Happy Dogs

The local canines are happy these days for there is no poundmaster to disturb their tranquility. While in charge of the district, Albert Merickoffer made it hot for the dog and his master, both may now rest and glad that the poundmaster is no more, officially.

Mighty Hunters

Edward O'Keefe, Joseph McMarthy, Warren Morey and Harry Morey sought the marshes on Monday for the coy teal and widgeon. They killed 20 in all, but report the birds very scarce. All the boys are excellent shots, no bird geting away that comes in gun shot of them. The veteran hunter, W. T. Casey, killed the limit on the opening day of the season at Alvarado.

St. Joseph Alumni Card Party

The card party to be held in Duff and Doyle hall next Wednesday evening, under the auspices of St. Joseph Alumni will be well attened as excellent prizes are to be awarded the winner of the game. The card punchers will be the prettiest girls in town.

New Store for Santa Cruz Ave.

John Duff is having contractors figure on plans for his new store building on Santa Cruz avenue, adjoining the French Laundry. It is to be a class C. structure with four stores and all modern improvements. It will cost close on to $15,000 when completed. It is rumored that a well-known chain store is to occupy one of the stores.

Off for Canada

A. E. Thomas left during the week for Gull Lake, Saskatchewan, where he has vast farm lands. Here is where the wild duck breed and rear their young, feeding on the rich grainfields of that section. Mr. Thomas promised local hunters that he would do his gest in driving the birds now fat and in fine condition, down this way. He will return in a month.

N. D. G. W. Card Party

On October 11th, the ladies of Menlo Parlor N. D. G. W. will hold a card party in the Masonic Temple at 2:30. Mrs. Vitcor Mitchell is chairman of the committee which is making preparations for the event.

More Lights for Menlo Park

Three additional lights were granted the Menlo Park lighting district Monday by the board of supervisors. The lights were requested in a petition signed by 25 residents of the district. They will be located on Cedar, Spruce and Watkins avenue.

The ladies of the National Council of Catholic Women will hold a food and rummage sale on Oak avenue, near the postoffice, Saturday, October 20, 1928.

Tuesday at Los Angeles Eldridge A. Douglas, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Douglas of Menlo Park, was united in marriage to Miss Cleste Perry. The pretty young bride is an auburn-haired southern beauty, her home being in Virginia. The wedding is the culmination of a romance which had its inception on board an ocean liner, when both young people were making a world tour. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas will reside in San Francisco, spending their week ends in Menlo Park.

Miss Eleanor Weir, the pretty and very charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Weir of Menlo Park, was married last Tuesday to Heber Tilden, a prominent young business man of San Francisco. The bride is one of the popular young ladies of the peninsula, with a host of friends in this community who wish her and her young husband a happy wedded life.

The time for registration closes on midnight, October 6. This will be tomorrow night. Those not registered by that time will be unable to vote at the presidential election on November 6. Mrs. Kurtz, the city clerk, will remain until late this evening and tomorrow evening. Dont fail to register Those having registered since the first of the year do no need to do so.

The two Hoover Clubs, the women and men's, are working in harmony and putting forth splendid effort on behalf of the local candidate for the presidency. A big rally will be held here before the election, at which Senator Shortridge is to speak. The headquarters of both organiaztion in the Monroe block is crowded with voters, seeking literature and buttons which shows the interest taken in the campaign for Hoover.

Fights Tammany

ALDERMAN RUTH PRATT, whose fight against Tammany Hall in the New York City Board of Aldermen, of which she is the only woman member, has brought her widespread recognition, has entered the national field to fight for the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

Plan Big Time At Firemen's Dance

What is expected to be the largest dance in the history of the Redwood City fire department will be held on Saturday evening, Noveber 3rd in the Foresters' hall. This is to be the annual dance of the fire department which is always one of the important social events of the year. The fire department is a volunteer organization and is supported solely by gifts to the department and from the proceeds from the annual dance. For this reason it enjoys an unusually large ticket sale.

The arrangements for the event this year are being made by a committee whose chairman is Al Russell. Russell is being assisted by a committee consisting of J. P. Anderson, C. E. Choate, A. S. Ligouri; B. L. Werder, E. M. Allen, P. E. Brand, L. M. Duncan, William Lutje and Harry Potts.

Arrangements have been made to have Art Weidner's eight-piece orchestra supply the music on this occasion.

A monster whist party for the benefit of St. Maximus Catholic church at Daly City will be held at the city auditorium under the auspices of James Callan on Tuesday evening, October 16. Fifty valuable prizes will be awarded to the winners during the evening. The card game is to be a big affair. Card fans are to be present in vast numbers. The big prizes is the magic that will draw the crowd.

Mrs. Albert Mansfield and family are in Los Angeles visiting Mrs. Mansfield's sister, Mrs. Harland Mansfield.

TO ERADICATE TUBERCULOSIS IN STATE CATTLE

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 4 (CNB) —"Get rid of all tubercular cows by mid-summer, 1931."

That's the warning of California today to dairymen of San Mateo county, as the state is preparing for legislation to put this ukase into effect.

Awaiting only Governor Young's formal approval, the first step of a three-fold plan favored by heads of the finance, health and agriculture departments is expected to be submitted to the law-makers in January providing that reacting dairy cattle must be removed from herds supplying market milk by June 30, 1931. There will be no compensation clause, and the owner must stand the loss of such animals as an extension of tuberculosis inspection service to a statewide basis may discover.

The proposal, designed as a first step to eradicate the disease from all cattle in the state, will effect upwards of 300,000 cows producing approximately ,127,000,000 gallons of market milk annually of which total San Mateo County's production by 1931 is expected to be 1,310,000 gallons.

As a further step, according to the plan favored by G. H. Hecke, A. R. Heron and Dr. Dalter M. Dickie, respectively directors of agriculture, finance and health whom Governor Young recently designated for a surve of the cattle tuberculosis situation the ban will be extended at some date beyond 1931 to include more than 350,000 cattle, milk from which is used in the manufacture of cheese, butter and other milk products.

And, eventually the tuberculosis barrier would be made to include all beef cattle, now numbering about 1,400,000 head in the state and of which 5,800 head are ranging in San Mateo county.

The committee, while it discussed the plan favored by Director Hecke for comprehensive eradication of tuberculosis in all cattle herds through slaughter of reactors and indemnification of owners, did not include any recommendations for recompense of dairy or beef cattle owners which would have to be slain as a result of the proposed legislation. The opinion was expressed in the report that the lapse of time between passage of the act and July 1, 1931 would afford dairymen "an opportunity to prepare for this program, and in this interval the trend of city regulation on this subject, as well as commercial commercial competition within the dairy industry would force many dairymen to clean up tuberculosis in their herds."

Dr. Dickie expressed an opinion that five years time would see the dairy situation greatly improved.

The plan, in effect, calls for extension to a statewide basis of the present tuberculosis eradication program now being carried out effectively in several counties through voluntary efforts of herd owners.

AERO EXPOSITION DRAWS TO CLOSE SUNDAY EVENING

Queen Crowned Here On Saturday Before Large Crowd

The aviation exposition sponsored here last week by the Pacific Aero Club of San Francisco, drew to a close Sunday night. The exposition, while lacking many of the features which its promoters promised, attracted large crowds of people and resulted in considerable favorable attention being directed toward the question of supplying an aviation field here.

The exposition was held on the Redwood aviation field, which is at present controlled by Mrs. Florence Sutton Saunders. The field was formerly a well-known air field and during the war was much used by the machines of that time as a training school.

The exposition atracted a number of aviators whose planes were on exhibition here including one tri-motored Ford plane.

On Saturday night Miss Dora Bertolucci was crowned queen of the carnival. Miss Bertolucci was the winner of the ticket selling contest in which a number of girls took part for the honor of being named queen, which carried with it a trip by aeroplane to Los Angeles and a try-out in moving pictures.

The coronation of the queen was followed by a street dance on Webster street. It was the intention of the promoters of the affair to have the street shut off wih canvass and charge admission. The crowd, however, objected to being charged to go onto a piece of the public street and forthwith broke through the canvas. After this the dance proceeded with admission being charged.

Clerk to Check Charter Petition

City Clerk W. A. Price was ordered by the city council at its regular meeting Monday night to check the signatures of the signers to the petition asking for a new charter. The petition was presented at a previous meeting of the board.

Merton Hughs, president of the Redwood City Promotion Association, and one of the circulators of the petition, was present and stated that the petition contained more than 500 names, more than the number required by law to inaugurate a movement of this kind. The petition asks the city council to call a special election at which a board of 15 freeholders shall be elected to formulate a city charter which will then be presented to the state legislature for its ratification.

In order that the clerk may file an affidavit as to the genuiness of the signatures it will be necessary that the names shall be compared with the registration lists in the county clerk's office.

The RED LAMP

SYNOPSIS

Events of the story as set forth in the journal of William A. Porter, professor of English literature:

The professor's uncle, Horace Porter, died mysteriously at his home, Twin Hollows, now the professor's property. Jane, the professor's wife, is a psychic. She insists Uncle Horace, dead for a year, had attended his class reunion and produces a snapshot to prove her contention. Professor Cameron, interested in psychical research, inclines to the idea of psychic photography. With their niece, Edith, the Porters go to Twin Hollows for their vacation, despite Jane's reluctance. A letter Horace had been writing at the time of his death shows that he was interested in spiritualism. It hints of danger. A "red lamp" is mentioned. They take up their residence in the lodge, because of Jane's aversion to the house.

Starr took himself away very soon after that, but before he left he exchanged a glance with Thomas, and I had a feeling that something lay behind this morning visit. It was not long before Thomas brought it out. It appears that Nylie ran after the figure to the edge of the wood, and there stood hesitating. The woods, I gather, share in the ill-repute of the house. And as he stood there, although everyone knew the house was empty, he distinctly saw the evil glow of the red lamp from it!

I dare say Jane is right, and my sense of humor is perverted, but I could not resist the opportunity of baiting Thomas. In which I realize now I made a tactical error.

"Really?" I said. "Nylie was certain of that, was he?"

"Saw it as plain as I see you," said Thomas. "I know you don't believe me—"

"But I do believe you. What about the red lamp?"

"Well," he said, "it's pretty well known about these parts that that lamp ain't healthy. Some say one thing and some say another, but most folks is agreed on that."

"Still, I don't see how it could kill sheep, do you?"

And even now I do not distinctly see the connection. I imagine the local belief is that the lamp exerts some malign influence, possibly even that it liberates some sinister spirit. Not, I imagine, that this is ever put into words. The nearest they come to that is the statement that the lamp is not "healthy," and that "George" has come back.

At least that is all that I can make out of that strange mixture of hysteria, superstitious fears and local mishaps to which Thomas gave birth in the next ten minutes or so. It began with Annie Cochran in the house after the lamp came, and gradually extended into the country-side; cows had mysteriously and prematurely calved; a meteorite had dropped into a field nearby; a fisherman's boat had been found empty in the bay on a quiet day and its owner never seen again; blight, pestilence and death had visited the community, equaled only in its history by the last few months of Mrs. Riggs' occupancy of the house. And the tradition was that Mrs. Riggs had used a red lamp to call her particular spirit.

"'George' was his name," said Thomas, "and by and large he gave us a lot of trouble."

"Let me get this, Thomas," I said. "You mean that you think this 'George' has come back?"

"I'm not saying that," he said with his usual caution. "But there's some talk of it."

"And killed those sheep?"

"I'm not saying that either. But there's not a man, woman or child around these parts would have gone into those woods night before last heading for the big house."

I felt that I had gone far enough and I proceeded to explain the lighting of the lamp that night. But, although I saw that he believed me readily enough, it did not for a moment alter his attitude toward the red lamp.

"And, as a matter of fact," I concluded, "I think Mrs. Porter actually saw the man Nylie chased, looking in through the pantry window."

"That'll have been 'George' all right," said Thomas, and creaked heavily out of the room.

To leaven the gloom of the morning, Halliday arrived today, in boisterous high spirits, broken with a sort of husky emotion when he saw his quarters.

"It's so darned good of you all," he said, and although the words were to Jane the look was for Edith.

After the women left we sat on the small veranda which surrounds the boathouse on three sides, and smoked. He told me his circumstances; he has exactly enough money to finish his course, which will take another year. At the end of that time he is to have a junior partnership in a law firm in Boston.

"But you know what that means, at first," he said. "A sort of subliminated clerical job. It will be a long time before I am independent."

Before he could marry, was what he meant. And again I thought of my endowment fund for lovers. There are so many funds for preserving human life, and so few to make it worth the preserving. But I must talk to Edith. It is no use making the boy more unhappy than he is, or breaking down the restraints he is clearly putting on himself.

"I lost two years in the war," he said. "That threw me back, you see."

"I dare say it was not lost."

"No," he agreed. "I suppose a man must gain something by a thing like that, if he survives."

From that to the stories about the main house, and to Thomas' recital this morning, was not a long step, nor from that to the history of the house itself and to Mrs. Riggs.

"Some night, sir," he suggested, "you and I might go up there and try rubbing the thing; see if we can evoke the genii. . . ."

About 8:30 tonight I took Jock and walked to Nylie's farm, where the sheep had been killed. I found the field, and wandered idly in. To my surprise, a man with a shotgun rose from a fence corner and confronted me, and Jock's hair rose as he prepared to spring.

"What do you want here?" he demanded, suspiciously.

"Go easy with that gun," I said. 'My name's Porter, and I'm out for a stroll. That's all."

He apologized gruffly, while I held Jock by the collar, and even condescended to point out where the dead sheep had been found, but there was certainly no cordiality in his manner, and even a trace of hostility.

July 1.

More sheep were killed last night. The Livingstones have lost a dozen of their blooded stock, and several farmers have suffered.

In each case the method is the same; the sheep are neatly stabbed in the jugular vein and then as neatly laid out in a row.

We are buying no mutton from the local butcher!

I assured Thomas this morning that I had not lighted the red lamp again, but he did not smile. He is quite capable of believing, I dare say, that I have summoned a demon I cannot control.

But he tells me that a county detective from town, sent by the sheriff, is coming out to look into the matter. And there is a certain relief in this. It seems to me that we have to do with some form of religious mania, symbolistic in its manifestation. The sheep is the ancient sacrifice of many faiths.

This belief is strengthened by Thomas' statement that in each case save the first one there has been left on a nearby rock or, in one instance, on a fence, a small cabalistic design roughly drawn in chalk.

Eight p. m. I feel like a man who has dreamed of some horrible or grotesque figure, and wakes to find it perched on his bed post.

The detective sent by Benchley, the sheriff, has just been here, a man named Greenough, a heavy-set individual with a pleasant enough manner and a damnable smile, behind which he conceals a considerable amount of shrewdness.

He had, of course, gathered together the local superstitions, and he was inclined to be facetious concerning my ownership of the red lamp. But he was serious enough about the business that had brought him.

"It's probably psychopathic," he said, "and the psychopath is a poor individual to let loose in any community, especially when he's got a knife."

My own suggestion of religious mania seemed to interest him.

"It's possible," he said. "It's a queer time in the world, Mr. Porter. People seem ready to do anything, think anything to escape reality. And from that to delusional insanity isn't very far. Now I'll ask you something. Did you ever hear of a circle, with a triangle inside it?"

I suppose I started, and I had a quick impression that his eyes were on me, shrewdly speculative behind his glasses. But the next moment he had reached into his pocket and drawn out a pencil and an envelope. "Like this," he said, and drawing the infernal symbol slowly and painstakingly, held it out to me.

To save my life I could not keep my hand steady; the envelope visibly quivered, and I saw his eyes on it.

"What do you mean, hear of it?" I asked. And then it came to me suddenly that that ridiculous statement of mine had somehow got to the fellow's ears, and that he was quietly hoaxing me. "Good Lord!" I said, and groaned. So you've happened on that, too!"

"So you know something about it?" he said quietly, and leaned forward. "Now, do you mind telling me what you know?"

He had not been hoaxing me. There was a curious significance in his manner, in the way he was looking at me, and it persisted while I told my absurd story. Told it badly, I realize, and haltingly; that I had picked up a book on Black Magic somewhere or other, and had as promptly forgotten it, save for one or two catch phrases and that infernal symbol of a triangle in a circle; how I had foolishly repeated them to a group of women, and now seemed likely never to hear the last of it.

"As I gather, the Lear woman has spread it all over town," I said. "She dabbles in spiritualism, or something, and it seems to have appealed to her imagination."

"It has certainly appealed to somebody's imagination," he said. "That's the mark our friend the sheep killer has been leaving."

He was very cordial as he picked up his hat and prepared to depart. He was sorry to have had to trouble me; nice little place I had there. He understood I was fighting shy of the other house. He would do the same thing; he didn't believe in ghosts, but he was afraid of them.

And so out onto the drive, leaving me with a full and firm conviction that he suspects me of killing some forty odd sheep in the last few nights, probably in the celebration of some Black Mass of my own psychopathic devising.

July 2.

Larkin thinks he has rented the house. I made a telephone message from him the excuse to go to town this morning. Mr. Bethel, the prospective tenant, was not present, but his secretary was, a thin boy with a bad skin and with his hair pomaded until it looks as though it is painted on his head. He smoked one cigarette after another as we talked.

If tomorrow is fair, Mr. Bethel will motor out and look over the property. It appears that he is in feeble health. If it is not, Gordon, the secretary, will come alone. It develops that, although the boy is a local product, and not one to be particularly proud of, Mr. Bethel comes from the West; Cameron's note to Larkin merely introduced him, but assumed no responsibility. As, however, he offers the rent in advance, the matter of reference becomes, as Larkin says, an unimportant detail.

I get the impression from the secretary that the old man is writing a book, and wishes to be undisturbed, and if his choice of a secretary fairly represents him, he will be.

From Larkin I learned that he had heard of the circle in a triangle from Helena Lear herself, at a dinner table, and that he has no idea that it is at all widespread. He regards the use of it by the sheep-killer as purely coincidence, which greatly cheers me.

Nevertheless, I went to the Lears and lunched there. Helena has agreed to spread the thing no further, and I came away with a great sense of relief. Into the bargain, Lear tells me that Cameron, after studying the photograph I sent him, is inclined to think it is the result of a double exposure.

No more sheep were killed last night. I understand Greenough has put guards on all the nearby flocks, and advised outlying farms to do the same thing. Maggie Morrison told us this morning that they were doing it, but in, I gathered, a half-hearted manner. Most of them believe that, by his very nature, the marauder is impervious to shot and shell.

One curious thing, however, has been brought in by Starr, who stopped on his way past today. In a meadow not far from the Livingstone place two large stones, which had lain there for years, have been moved together and stood on their edges, and a flat slab of rock laid across them. On top of this, when it was found, there lay a small heap of fine sand.

One can figure, of course, that here is an altar, erected by the same unbalanced mind which has been killing the sheep. But no offering has yet been laid on it.

Later: Halliday spent the evening here, and I walked back with him. He tells me that on his first night in the boathouse, he saw a light moving over the salt marsh, about three hundred feet away.

At first he thought it was some one on the way to the beach, with a flashlight or a lantern, and he watched with some curiosity. Earlier in the evening he had himself walked along the edge of the swamp and decided it was not passable. But half way through the marsh the light stopped and then disappeared.

"I decided the chap, whoever it was, was in trouble," he said, "so I called to him. But there was no answer, and the light didn't appear again."

"Marsh gas, probably," I explained. "Methane, C. H., of course."

"Marsh gas burns with a thin blue flame, doesn't it? This was a small light, rather white. I waited an hour or so, but it didn't show again."

I have, since my return, looked up the book on the Oakville phenomena which I discovered on the desk of the main house. It is not significant, but it is interesting, to find that Mrs. Riggs produced fleeting lights, sometimes of a bluish green, from the cabinet, again a sparkling point which generally localized itself near her head. But I cannot find any record of a light persisting for any length of time, or following a definite course.

July 3.

The house is rented. As it rained this morning, the secretary came alone, and seemed very well satisfied.

But at the last moment my conscience began to worry me, and perhaps too, for none of our motives are unmixed, I was afraid he suspected something. He made some observation about the rent being low for a property of that size, and glanced at me as he said it, so I plunged.

"I think I'd better be honest with you, even if it costs me money," I said. "The house is cheap because it—well, it isn't an easy house to rent."

"Too lonely, eh?"

"Partly that, and partly because—a portion of the house is very old and there have been some stories about it circulating in the neighborhood for years."

"Ghost stories?"

"You can call them that. I don't believe anyone claims to have seen anything. The reports are mostly of raps and various noises."

He seemed to take a peculiar, almost a furtive, enjoyment out of my statement, my confession, rather.

"Hot dog!" he said. "Well, raps won't bother me, and Mr. Bethel's got a deaf ear; he can turn that up at night if they worry him."

So the house is rented, unless something unexpected turns up, and I have done my part. But I confess to an extreme distaste for the secretary and Edith may find herself with a small problem on her hands. For just before we left he spied her on the float, and gave her a careful inspection.

"That looks pretty good to me," he said. And although his gesture embraced the water front his eyes were on her.

I have arranged with Annie Cochran, following Gordon's query about a servant, to resume her old position at the main house. She refuses to remain after dark, but I presume this will be satisfactory. She will also commence tomorrow to get the house in readiness.

With that strange swiftness with which news travels in the country, already the word has gone out that the place is rented, and I lay to that our sudden popularity this afternoon. The first to arrive was Doctor Hayward, nervous and jerky, fiddling with his collar, and when for a moment excluded from the talk, gnawing abstractedly at his finger ends. He addressed himself mostly to Jane—there is a certain type of medical man who wins his way into families by the favor of women, and is more at his ease with them than with its men folk—and only beat a circuitous route to the subject uppermost in his mind, which clearly was that an elderly invalid had taken Twin Hollows and would probably require a physician.

In the course of this roundabout talk, however, I came finally to the conclusion that, like the detective, he was watching me. And, as had happened with Greenough, I became absurdly self-conscious. Once I mentioned the matter of the sheep, but he rather dexterously sidestepped it, and finally brought the talk around to the renting of the house. But I am confident that Greenough has been to him about me, and has asked him to give him an opinion on my mental balance.

I was on guard after that; determined to exhibit myself in my most rational manner. But there is something upsetting in the mere thought that one's sanity is being brought into question.

Hayward left finally, when the Livingstones arrived.

"You must take good care of this fine husband of yours, Mrs. Porter," he said, holding her hand in the paternal fashion of his type. "He's probably been overdoing it a bit." The result of which is that Jane herself has taken to watching me quietly, and that she suggested this evening that I take a course of bromide for my nerves.

Irritated at Hayward as I was, and annoyed at myself, I saw him to his car, and asked him the question which has been in the back of my mind ever since I found the letter in the library desk.

"By the way," I said, "you knew my Uncle Horace pretty well. Better than I did, in recent years. Did he have many friends—I mean, locally?"

He straightened his tie with a jerk.

"He had no intimates at all, so far as I know. I knew him as well as anybody. He rather liked Mrs. Livingstone, but he had no use for Livingstone himself."

"Well, I'll change the question. Do you know of any quarrel he had had, shortly before he died?"

"That's easier. He quarreled with a good many people. I imagine you know that as well as I do."

"He never mentioned to you that he had had a definite difference of opinion with anyone?"

Looking back tonight over that conversation, I am inclined to think that he had an answer for that question and that he almost gave it. But he changed his mind.

"I'd like to know why you ask me that," he said.

"He had never talked to you about calling on the police, in some emergency?"

"Never. I see what you're driving at, Porter," he added. "I admit, I had some thought of that myself at the time. But the autopsy showed the cause of death all right. He wasn't murdered."

"The blow on the head had nothing to do with it, then?"

He glanced at me quickly.

"If it was a blow," he said, "it didn't help matters any, of course. But I prefer to think that the head injury was received as he fell." He hesitated. "Don't you?"

"Naturally," I agreed.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Fire losses in State-protected forest, grain and grazing areas total $1,030,000 for this year, State Forester M. B. Pratt announced a few days ago. Considering a total of 1,261 fires, Pratt said the greatest damage has resulted in grain lands. The total grain field loss has been $578,057.25. Timber damage, thus far, has been held down to $32,086.75.

Hearings on the 1929-31 budget will commence on October 1, according to the announcement of A. R. Heron, director of the State Department of Finance. Preliminary estimates indicate that the total amount recommended for State expenses will be slightly higher than during the current biennium, Heron said.

Industrial employment was 2 per cent greater in August than in the same month last year. Total payrolls showed a 6.8 per cent increase and average weekly earnings were 4.7 per cent larger. Thousands of non-reporting outdoor workers continue to be employed in harvesting large crops and in getting them ready for market, according to the Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust company of San Francisco.

Save California beaches—preserve California's redwoods. With this plea for the $6,000,000 park bonds which will come up for public approval in the November election, Senator Arthur H. Breed last week predicted victory for the State Park Bonds Act. Senator Breed, president of the State Senate and author of the act, declared that the public would soon lose the use of beaches and forests, now being absorbed by private capital, unless the bonds were passed.

Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan announced the other day that the tickets of the Republican and Prohibition parties for President and Vice President will be listed separately on the November election ballot, even though these two parties in California have chosen the same group of presidential electors. On the ballot forms, one for each assembly district, Jordon said, the groups of party electors must be so rotated that each will appear first on the ballot approximately the same number of times.

With organized labor behind the movement, Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, announced recently that his department is drafting legislation for centralized State control of California traffic police. The State Federation of Labor passed a resolution at its convention in Sacramento endorsing the proposal to abolish the present "doubleheaded" system of State and County traffic officer control. At present the State motor vehicle chief appoints traffic officers for service in the various counties, but the County boards of supervisors prepare the list of eligible persons.

Gasoline tax revenues collected by the various States last year netted a total for the Nation of $253,966,851. California, with the largest registration of any State collecting such a tax and with the highest ratio of cars per population in the Union, raised a greater amount of road revenues by this method than any other State. Motorists in California paid a total of $22,467,083. Of the total collected in the Nation, $182,095,503 was available for the construction and maintenance of State highways under the supervision of the State highway departments and $55,440,161 was apportioned to counties for local road purposes and engineers at Oakland.

Contracts for two Superior California highway jobs were signed a few days ago by Bert B. Meek, State director of public works. One, let to J. P. Brennan of Redding, is for the construction of two reinforced concrete bridges across Valley and Indian Creeks, twenty-five and forty-two miles, respectively, west of Redding on the Weaverville lateral. The contract price is $22,431.22. The other is for widening and surfacing with bituminous macadam of 2.1 miles between Sheridan and the northerly boundary of Placer county, awarded to E. F. Hilliard of Sacramento on a bid of $13,594.

Arrests of 600 narcotic law violators have been made by State, city and county officers in the California campaign against the "dope" traffic since the first of this year, State Narcotic Director Frank H. Benson announced recently. Most of those apprehended have received jail sentences, Benson said, and sixty of them have been given terms in the State penitentiary.

James Boyer, one of the directors of the East Bay Municipal Utilities District, announced last week that the Lafayette dam, work on which was stopped recently when the center section fell, will have to be entirely reconstructed. The announcement followed a conference between directors.

Every California's ballot will be worth exactly $10, collectable at the polls, if Senator-elect Frank Merriam of Long Beach is successful in securing adoption of a measure which he will propose at the January legislative session. The Merriam act, a compulsory voting measure, would fix a $10 poll tax on all Californians, with the proviso however, that payment be waived when the individual registers and votes at all elections. If this measure cannot be passed, Merriam said, he would support Governor Young's plan for compulsory registration of voters.

California oil production in California averaged 632,875 barrels daily during August, compared with 645,000 barrels in July and 621,477 during August, 1927. Total stocks of crude and refined oils-in-storage on August 1 were 139,753,307 barrels, a decrease of 352,254 barrels from the month before and of 6,517,036 barrels from August 1, 1927. Advances in crude oil prices were announced about the middle of August by the larger oil producers, according to the Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust company of San Francisco.

Survey of sites proposed for inclusion in the State park system, for which a $6,000,000 bond issue will be on the ballot in November, has so far covered 169 of the 297 suggested parks, the State Park Commission announced last week. The result of the survey will be submitted to the legislature in December.

Any person making false statements on applications for license to drive automobiles faces prosecution. This is the announcement made by the State Division of Motor Vehicles. The announcement says that discovery has been made of fraudulent practices employed "by unscrupulous individuals and service bureaus to obtain original operators' licenses." In making such applications, applicants make the false statement that they have been driving for a number of years and have lost or mislaid their licenses. To stop this practice all applications for duplicate licenses will be forwarded to the Sacramento office for verification before duplicates are issued.

Eight times a billionaire—that's California! And getting richer at a rate of $1,250,000 every day! That's the astounding fact revealed last week by the State Board of Equalization, which places the grand total of taxable property in the State at $8,125,497,579, a gain of $439,615,906 over the 1927 summary. It's a jump of 5.7 per cent and is the first time California's wealth ever has passed the eight billion mark. Cities of the State have gained tremendously in wealth, while, owing to adverse conditions, some agricultural sections must be classed as backsliding, but the trend is for another big leap forward in 1929, the board's report indicates.

State aid in building the proposed San Francisco transbay bridge is urged on the Board of Supervisors in a resolution filed by the Northern Federation of Civic Associations. The organization contends the project is too large to be financed by that city alone. It is urged that the city ask financial assistance not only from the State government, but also from nearby counties that would be benefited by a bridge.

Although upholding the principle of safety underlying the proposed $10,000,000 State bond issue for elimination of grade crossings which will appear on the November ballot as Amendment No. 18, the directors of the California Development Association have voted to oppose its passage for two reasons: Because of the increasing Statewide protest against the rising tide of taxation, and because the present gasoline tax has not been proved insufficient to provide the funds necessary for grade crossing elimination.

One hundred and forty companies in California operated approximately 1,215,000 connected telephone stations during the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of the telephone and telegraph division of the State Railroad Commission, on file a few days ago. This was an increase of more than 6 per cent in the number of telephone services over the previous year. "Despite demands for increased rates growing out of increased demands for service," says a commission bulletin, "the commission issued decisions resulting in the saving of many thousands of dollars a year to telephone users."

Twelve State building projects totaling $1,718,500 will be started before February 1, according to an announcement recently by the State Division of Architecture. The building operations will be carried on at seven institutions for the insane and feeble minded, three State teachers' colleges, the Berkeley School for the Blind and at Folsom prison. Construction of a new cell block at Folsom is one of the major projects, the cost to be $223,000. The work will be done by convict labor.

The shortest bill-introducing session in California legislative history. That is the goal toward which the present State administration is heading with new regulations designed by Governor C. C. Young to speed up legislative procedure when the Senate and Assembly convene in January. Taxation problems may or may not make the second half of the winter session a long one. But so far as the first half of the biennial meeting is concerned, the gist of Governor Young's admonition to the law makers is "make it snappy."

While California is famed as a gold producing State, it is coming into prominence as a producer of other minerals, according to State Mineralogist Walter W. Bradley. Writing in the September Mining Congress Journal on the commercial non-metallis mineral resources of the State, Bradley says: "Some of these are playing even more important roles in our economic structure than gold, although the State still leads all other States in producing 30 per cent of the country's gold output. The present annual value of California minerals is in excess of $450,000,000. Each of the fifty-eight counties of the State contribute a portion of one or more minerals and some produce all of them."

Warning that numerous unscupulous salesmen are now operating in California is issued to housewives by the State corporation department. Numerous complaints received at the office of the department at Sacramento state these salesmen are offering aluminum ware, suits of clothing and other articles and are securing customers through the misrepresentation of their wares. The delivered articles are greatly inferior to the samples shown to customers. "All persons should be on guard against these dishonest salesmen," the department warning said.

Smiling and jaunty, Leo Pat Kalley, slayer of Mrs. Myrtle Mellus, Los Angeles society matron, walked from the ferry landing to the gates of San Quentin Prison, under sentence of death. The smile faded as the shadow of the big iron doors fell upon him and it was a much more serious young man who greeted the prison officials. With a shrug of his shoulders, he threw off his depression and assured everyone that he has come only for a short stay. "I will be out of here inside of ninety days,' he declared. "I am going back to Los Angeles for a new trial and freedom."

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

Few Walk Correctly, According to Critic

In learning to walk correctly people often concentrate on the placing of the foot on the ground with no regard to the part the rest of the body plays in their progression, whereas if the co-ordination of the body is understood, the correct placement of the foot comes as the natural result of finishing a movement which actually starts in the spine. It would seem that the very commonest of walking would insure its proper performance, instead of which the very opposite is the case. The majority of people rarely ask themselves how they walk; they simply take it for granted that they know how to walk. But when they begin to analyze walking from the standpoint of correct balance and transference of weight, it is found to demand such fine co-ordination that it becomes a basis for nearly all subsequent graceful motions.—Marguerite Agniel in the Dance Magazine.

THE EARLIEST PICTURE OF THE LANDING OF COLUMBUS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

OCTOBER 12 is a day which Americans set aside for honoring the memory of the Genoese sailor who is almost universally credited with being the "discoverer" of the New World and in twenty-three states of the Union—Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont and Washington—Columbus day is a legal holiday.

Most of us know something about Columbus, for the story of his life with the record of its dauntless ambition which drove him on in spite of many disappointments and discouragements until success came to him, only to end in poverty and failure, is one of the most romantic and at the same time one of the most tragic in the annals of mankind. But what of the history-making event itself, the anniversary of which we are about to celebrate again? How clear a picture do we have of what took place on that October day, 436 years ago? For all of the millions of words that have been written about Christopher Columbus and his voyages of discovery in the past four centuries, there is none which paints the scene more vividly than do the words of an American historian who wrote of it more than a hundred years ago, and modern scholarship has found but little to correct in the record as it is set down by Washington Irving in his "Life and Voyages of Columbus."

Here is the story of that historic day as Irving tells it:

It was on Friday morning the 12th of October, that Columbus first beheld the New World. As the day dawned he saw before him a level island, several leagues in extent, and covered with trees like a continual orchard. Though apparently uncultivated, it was populous, for the inhabitants were seen issuing from all parts of the woods and running to the shore. They were perfectly naked, and, as they stood gazing at the ships, appeared by their attitudes and gestures to be lost in astonishment. Columbus made signal for the ships to cast anchor, and the boats to be manned and armed. He entered his own boat, richly attired in scarlet, and hiding the royal standard, while Martin Alonzo Pinzon, and Vicente Yanez, his brother, put off in company in their boats, each with a banner of the enterprise emblazoned with a green cross, having on either side the letters F. and Y., the initials of the Castilian monarchs, Fernando and Ysabel, surmounted by crowns.

As he approached the shore, Columbus, who was disposed for all kinds of agreeable impressions, was delighted with the purity and suavity of the atmosphere, the crystal transparency of the sea, and the extraordinary beauty of the vegetation. He beheld, also, fruits of an unknown kind upon the trees which overhung the shores. On landing he threw himself on his knees, kissed the earth, and returned thanks to God with tears of joy. His example was followed by the rest, whose hearts indeed overflowed with the same feelings of gratitude. Columbus, then rising, drew his sword, displayed the royal standard, and assembling round him the two captains, with Rodrigo de Escobedo, notary of the armament, Rodrigo Sanchez, and the rest who had landed, he took solemn possession in the name of the Castilian sovereigns, giving the island the name of San Salvador. Having complied with the requisite forms and ceremonies, he called upon all present to take the oath of obedience to him, as admiral and viceroy, representing the persons of the sovereigns.

The feelings of the crew now burst forth in the most extravagant transports. They had recently considered themselves devoted men, hurrying forward to destruction; they now looked upon themselves as favorites of fortune, and gave themselves up to the most unbounded joy. They thronged around the admiral with overflowing zeal, some embracing him, others kissing his hands. Those who had been most mutinous and turbulent during the voyage were now most devoted and enthusiastic. Some begged favors of him, as if he already had wealth and honors in his gift. Many abject spirits, who had outraged him by their insolence, now crouched at his feet, begging pardon for all the trouble they had caused him and promising the blindest obedience for the future.

The natives of the island, when, at the dawn of day, they had beheld the ships hovering on their coast, had supposed them monsters which had issued from the deep during the night. They had crowded to the beach and watched their movements with awful anxiety. Their veering about, apparently without effort, and the shifting and furling of their sails, resembling huge wings, filled them with astonishment. When they beheld their boats approach the shore, and a number of strange beings clad in glittering steel, or raiment of various colors, landing upon the beach, they fled in affright to the woods. Finding, however, that there was no attempt to pursue or molest them, they gradually recovered from their terror, and approached the Spaniards with great awe; frequently prostrating themselves on the earth, and making signs of adoration. During the ceremonies of taking possession, they remained gazing in timid admiration at the complexion, the beards, the shining armor, and splendid dress of the Spaniards. The admiral particularly attracted their attention, from his commanding height, his air of authority, his dress of scarlet, and the deference which was paid him by his companions; all which pointed him out to be the commander. When they had still further recovered from their fears, they approached the Spaniards, touched their beards, and examined their hands and faces, admiring their whiteness. Columbus was pleased with their gentleness and confiding simplicity, and suffered their scrutiny with perfect acquiescence, winning them by his benignity. They now supposed that the ships had sailed out of the crystal firmament which bounded their horizon, or had descended from above on their ample wings, and that these marvelous beings were inhabitants of the skies.

The natives of the island were no less objects of curiosity to the Spaniards, differing, as they did, from any race of men they had ever seen. Their appearance gave no promise of either wealth or civilization, for they were entirely naked, and painted with a variety of colors. With some it was confined merely to a part of the face, the nose or around the eyes; with others it extended to the whole body and gave them a wild and fantastic appearance. Their complexion was of a tawny or copper hue, and they were entirely destitute of beards. Their hair was not crisped, like the recently discovered tribes of the African coast, under the same latitude, but straight and coarse, partly cut short above the ears, but some locks were left long behind and falling upon their shoulders. Their features, though obscured and disfigured by paint, were agreeable; they had lofty foreheads and remarkably fine eyes. They were of moderate stature and well-shaped; most of them appeared to be under thirty years of age; there was but one female with them, quite young, naked like her companions, but beautifully formed.

As Columbus supposed himself to have landed on an island and at the extremity of India, he called the natives by the general appellation of Indians, which was universally adopted before the true nature of his discovery was known, and has since been extended to all the aboriginals of the New World.

The islanders were friendly and gentle. Their only arms were lances, hardened at the end by fire, or pointed with a flint, or the teeth or bone of a fish. There was no iron to be seen, nor did they appear acquainted with its properties; for, when a drawn sword was presented to them they unguardedly took it by the edge.

Columbus distributed among them colored caps, glass beads, hawks' bells, and other trifles, such as the Portuguese were accustomed to trade with among the nations of the gold coast of Africa. They received them eagerly, hung the beads round their necks, and were wonderfully pleased with their finery, and with the sound of the bells. The Spaniards remained all day on shore, refreshing themselves after their anxious voyage amid the beautiful groves of the island.

The island where Columbus had thus, for the first time, set his foot upon the New World was called by the natives Guanahane. It still retains the name of San Salvador, which he gave it, though called by the English Cat Island. The night which he had seen the evening previous to his making land may have been on Watling's Island, which lies a few leagues to the east San Salvador is one of the great cluster of the Lucayos or Bahama Islands, which stretch southeast and northwest, from the coast of Florida to Hispaniola.

A unique engraving made to illustrate an Italian poem by Guiliano Dato, printed in Florence in 1493, shortly after Columbus' return. From a facsimile of the original in the British Museum, reproduced in the Yale University Press "Pageant of America."

Columbus' Story Lost

When Columbus returned to Spain from the New World, he stopped on February 14, 1493, at Santa Maria, one of the islands of the Azores, probably to take water. Four days before this he had encountered a most terrific storm and was convinced that he, his men and his vessels must perish.

Now Columbus realized in his heart that he was going back to Spain with news of a discovery second in importance to no other. And when it seemed that his ship would sink at any moment he set to work to make a record of his mighty undertaking, hoping that by some will of the Fates it would not be lost to posterity.

So he carefully prepared as complete an account of his marvelous voyage as was possible under the circumstances. He wrote the details of his journey on a stout piece of parchment, wrapped it carefully in a piece of waterproof cloth, then placed it in an ironbound barrel and threw it into the raging ocean. But the Fates were kinder to Columbus than to this account made in a time of stress.

Certainly this, the first record of America, written by the brave hand of Columbus, would be the most precious relic in all the chronicles of our country. Alas, that it never has been found! And if I thought there were one chance in a million of finding it I would take my power boat, the First Folio, and cruise in the neighborhood of the Azores forever!—S. W. Rosenbach in the Saturday Evening Post.

New Columbus Papers

MADRID—There have been discovered in the archives of Seville three curious documents relative to Christopher Columbus which hitherto were entirely unknown. One is a power of attorney granted by the illustrious navigator, and another is a power granted by his brother, Don Hernando. These are respectively dated from Salamanca and from Astorga, in 1506.

The third document is more curious. It is a reply of the Commercial House of Seville to a royal note ordering it to restore to him who discovered the New World a certain quantity of gold that was his property. It is said, in this reply, that Christopher Columbus had not a maravedis belonging to him in the Commercial House of Seville.

These diverse documents have been found in the course of research made in the archives of the protocols with a view to the reproduction of the famous caravel Santa Maria, on which Columbus sailed for the discovery of America, a reproduction which is to figure at the Hispano-American exposition at Seville.

POULTRY

PLAN TO FATTEN HOLIDAY TURKEYS

The marketing season for turkeys is from about the middle of November to the last of December.

Confining turkeys during the fattening season has not proved successful. They will eat heartily for two or three days, but after this they will lose their appetite and begin to lose flesh rapidly. Naturally, they are wild birds and thrive only when they have access to open range. During the summer and fall they find an abundance of feed on the average farm; however, it is advisable to give them a small feed at night for the purpose of bringing them home to roost. Grasshoppers and other insects, weeds and grass seeds, green vegetation, berries and grain picked up in the fields and about go to make up the turkey's daily ration, and when all these are plentiful they are in splendid condition when the fattening season arrives.

A satisfactory plan for fattening is to begin by feeding small rations night and morning, not enough at a time but that the birds will walk away still a little hungry, and gradually increase the quantity, adding some corn, until they are given all they will eat three times a day. Along at the close of the fattening season corn, supplemented with fresh sour milk, may constitute the full ration. New corn may be fed safely provided the turkeys are gradually accustomed to it, otherwise scours may result.

Various kinds of nuts are a natural fattening feed picked up by turkeys on the range. In parts of Texas many growers, properly situated, depend solely on acorns for fattening their turkeys, and when the mast is plentiful the birds are marketed in fairly good condition.

Use Lights in Poultry House During Winter

A series of cautions for the user of lights in the poultry house is found in the Ohio state poultry calendar. They are as follows:

Grade and pen pullets according to age, condition, and laying qualities, so that each group may be properly handled.

Excessive fall production makes it hard to keep the flock in heavy production during the winter.

Don't use lights to produce more than a 14-hour day. Excessive use of lights means overproduction, followed by a slump.

To avoid a spring molt, discontinue lights slowly in the spring.

Use lights on breeders only after January 1 to 15, in order to help them back into production.

Don't crowd production over 60 per cent, otherwise the flock will become thin and molt.

Be regular in management and use of lights.

Feed grain liberally when using lights.

Always have feed and water available when lights are on.

Do not turn lights off too early in the spring.

Do not stop feeding early and late in the day when lights are finally eliminated.

Early Layers Usually Heavy Egg Producers

Pullets that begin to lay early usually are the heaviest producers in the flock and for this reason it is an excellent practice to mark them so that they can be given due consideration for their performance next year when it comes time to cull the flock, it is pointed out by L. E. Card, of the University of Illinois. Pullets that are extremely late in starting to lay are always certain to be the least desirable birds to use as breeders. In breeding for higher egg production, individuals of this type should be kept out of the breeding pens.

If the early-laying pullets are banded with numbered leg bands, all that is necessary is to make a record of the individual band numbers and the approximate date on which egg laying starts. Another equally satisfactory scheme is to use colored leg bands, in which case a different colored band should be used to mark the pullets that start laying in the different months.

Laying Hen Sings

A laying hen is usually a singing hen and happiness is encouraged by plenty of good oat or wheat straw on the floor. Practical poultrymen differ as to the respective merits of wheat, rye, and oat straw for litter. Each has been used without any noticeable differences as to wearing and sanitary qualities. Rye straw is somewhat stiff and oat straw breaks rather readily. The best advice is to use what is convenient and keep the house in good sanitary condition.

Cause of Fowl Typhoid

Thank your lucky stars if you've never met up with Eberthella sanguinarium. She's the germ that causes fowl typhoid, a most destructive disease. It acts much like fowl cholera, the birds becoming dull, droopy, with pale combs and a greenish or yellowish diarrhoea. Death usually isn't as rapid as with cholera. One mark of typhoid is that the liver enlarges and becomes a brownish or greenish color, while the kidneys look faded, as if cooked.

Yellow of Fowls

When a hen is not laying she deposits fat on her body. This fat contains a yellow pigment (in yellow-skinned varieties) which gives the yellow color to the legs, beak, skin, ear lobes, eye rings and vent. As soon as a hen begins to produce eggs, this yellow pigment is diverted from the body and is used in coloring the egg yolk. As long as a hen produces eggs, the pigment is all used by the yolk and none of it finds its way to the body.

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsilitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

Unpleasant Type of Visitors to America

Mary Roberts Rinehart, who was recently awarded a $1,200 income tax refund, said at a Washington reception:

"A thing like that refund makes me feel very friendly toward our country. Everybody, by the way, feels very friendly toward our country nowadays except the third-rate English novelists who flock over here to lecture.

"I said to one of these novelists the other night:

"'Well, sir, how do you like the U. S. A.?'

"'O-er-rather tiresome,' he answered.

"'Haven't you seen anything that attracted you, sir?'

"'Well—er-no; can't say I have.'

"'But take Niagara falls. Have you been to Niagara?'

"'Spent the day there.'

"'Well, now, come, isn't Niagara a sight worth seeing?'

"He yawned.

"'From the Canadian side—yes,' he said."

For the Baby

To protect the baby from diaper rash, diapers should always be washed in a solution of 20 Mule Team Borax. Borax neutralizes the acids, and removes all traces of soap which may irritate the baby's tender skin.—Adv.

Old and Ancient

Colonel Lindbergh said in one of his interviews in New York.

"By keeping my eyes open and following directions I got through all the ceremonies of my European reception in pretty good shape. Of course, I was ignorant of court etiquette and such things—as ignorant as the schoolboy.

"'What's the Order of the Bath?" a school teacher asked this schoolboy.

"'It's something very old and ancient,' the boy said. 'It goes back to the time when they didn't take no baths except by order.'"

Super-Sentimental

"I notice the Seatons didn't turn in their old auto on their new one, after all."

"No. They hadn't the heart to let it go into the hands of strangers who might abuse it."—Pathfinder.

Homeliness is not next to godliness, but it is one step toward it. It often eliminates self-conceit.

Donkey Wins Royal Home

A white donkey with soft, appealing eyes won the heart of Princess Mary of England when she was in Egypt a few months ago. She paid the owner a handsome sum and now the donkey is living in royal style in London and is the pet of the two sons of the princess.

Salmon Once More

Five ex-service men were gathered at a table in a restaurant recently. The waiter, asked to suggest something in the cold meat line, said there was some good salmon on the menu. Only one of the five took the suggestion. The other four agreed they had enough during the war to last them a lifetime. —Detroit News.

DON'T DO THIS!

LEONARD EAR OIL
Improves Hearing, Relieves Head Noises
Nine out of ten cases of DEAFNESS and HEAD NOISES are caused by catarrhal mucus (matter) in the Eustachian Tubes, which connects the nose and the ears. Leonard Ear Oil removes the MUCUS, OPENS UP THE TUBE and THE OTHER AIR PASSAGES OF THE HEAD, and the result is improved Hearing and relief from Head Noises. It is not put in the ears, but is "INSERTED IN THE NOSTRILS" and "RUBBED in BACK OF THE EARS" and special instructions by a noted Ear Specialist in each package for different kinds of Deafness and Head Noises tell you exactly how to take care of your own case. Leonard Ear Oil is not an experiment but has had a very large and constantly growing sale since 1907, and every year it has relieved thousands of people of their Ear Troubles. No matter how long you have been deaf, nor how deaf you are, or what caused your deafness, or how many things you have already tried which have failed to relieve you, Leonard Ear Oil has relieved many such cases as your own. Why not you? The price is $1.25. Leonard Ear Oil is for sale at Druggists, or direct postpaid upon receipt of price.

PIGGLY WIGGLY

In the Public Eye This Week

Quality and Prices Will Long Be Remembered

Have you visited a Piggly Wiggly Store this week? If you haven't, you are no doubt making plans to do so sometime Friday or Saturday—the last days of our "Anniversary Week."

We cordially invite all to visit a Piggly Wiggly Store, whether you wish to purchase or not—no one is ever asked to buy at Piggly Wiggly.

Go to any Piggly Wiggly Store and see for yourself the system of food merchandising that is ALWAYS in the Public Eye. The Store Manager will gladly answer any questions and conduct you through the store.

The following prices apply in all Piggly Wiggly Stores in San Francisco, South San Francisco, Burlingame, Redwood City, San Mateo and Daly City Friday and Saturday.
